'A government out of control,' Simon characterizes America

by Dana Philpot

"America was not only conceived in freedom, but more importantly, it grew in freedom," said William E. Simon, author of the best seller, A Time For Truth, and distinguished conservative.

He cited the United States as a land where even the most humble people have historically had the chance to better themselves.

Simon addressed a crowd of almost 1500, Monday night in Harding's main auditorium on the subject of America's freedom and her economic policies, as a part of the American Studies program.

Simon served as Secretary of the Treasury from 1974 to 1977. He has also served as Chairman of the Economic Policy Board, the Federal Energy Office, and the East-West Foreign Trade Board.

According to Dr. Billy Ray Cox, Vice President of Harding, A Time For Truth "may be the most significant work of this decade."

According to Simon however, "We have a government rolling out of control and careening crazily toward socialism," which is severely limiting economic growth and freedom.

Simon feels these economic freedoms are especially important since "A free enterprise system and a free society are indivisible. The real issue is human freedom," he said.

Later noting the 37 per cent turnout at a recent election, Simon pointed to the public's responsibility for change saying, "The American people must decide whether they'll sell the liberty which is the envy of the free world . . ."

Pryor labels crowded lunch as reason for early chapel

by Doug Thompson

The main reason for a 9 a.m. chapel is to avoid letting all students out for lunch at the same time. Dr. Joe Pryor said that most students will eat at their first opportunity. For many, this opportunity would be the 25 minute "safety valve" break in the schedule, if chapel started at or around 11 a.m.

"This is not the lunch period. If more than 200-300 students leave no free period, I'll have to ask some to make a class change," he said.

"We had a chapel at 8:55-9:35 in 1952-1953, and the dean of students was besieged with complaints. We scheduled the next year's chapel at a later time, so that all students got out at the time they were accustomed to eating lunch," he said.

"I can still remember looking out of the old science building and seeing lunch lines extending back almost to the library. Students complained of standing in line for 20 minutes without moving a step — the cutting in line was so bad. That was when we had 854 students total. Today we have more per cafeteria," he said.

The next fall we went back to an early chapel, and received no complaints whatsoever," he said.

It is an academic rule that there be time for two three-hour labs with a class period in between. To avoid lunch time, the chapel must be scheduled early. To prevent labs from extending to the early evening it must be scheduled at about 9 a.m.

Although many students like to sleep in, especially on Tuesday and Thursday, Pryor said he felt they would prefer 9 a.m. chapel to any other alternative. One proposal, for instance, was to have classes begin at 7 in the morning.

"Adjustments might be made, but in light of our scheduling experiences this seems to be the most practical schedule possible," Pryor said.

Frye recipient of award at regional convention

On April 7 four members of the Harding chapter of Phi Alpha Theta, the history honor society, attended the state convention of the organization at UALR.

Mitch Walton, James Green, and Rick Hamill were accompanied by Dr. Fred Jewell, faculty sponsor of the Harding chapter. Hamill presented a paper entitled "The British Reaction to the Surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown"; Dr. Jewell read a paper written by Ron Frey entitled "The Use of Violence to Induce Social Change: An Historical Perspective." Frey was unable to deliver his paper because of illness.

Frey's paper was voted the outstanding undergraduate paper by a panel of faculty judges; Hamill's paper was the runner-up. This was the third consecutive time a Harding student had been awarded the prize for the outstanding paper at the state convention.

Previous recipients of the award were Jeff Broadwater, now a third-year student at U. of A. law school, and Mike Pullara, a second-year student at U. of A. law school.

Cloud, Stamatis in runoff today, Osborn, Jones, Buce successful

Student Association president for 1979-80 will be decided in a runoff today between Jonathan Cloud and Ken Stamatis and three member of the Executive Council were chosen in the S.A. elections Wednesday.

In the race for vice president, David Osborn won over Chuck Posey, 766 to 394. Boyd Jones will serve as secretary, winning over write-in candidate Marla Curry, 545 to 502, and Walt Buce received 597 votes over Mark Scribner's 535 in the race for treasurer.

In the presidential election, Cloud received 532 votes; Stamatis, 367; and Andrea Faulkner, 304.

Jones, in stating his goals for the S.A. said, "The role of S.A. secretary has been defined as the person who organizes the S.A., prepares agendas, types the minutes, and keeps the student body informed as well as keeping the S.A. committees informed. I want to utilize the BISON and work closely with it and KHCA.

"From being on a very active S.A. last year as sophomore men's representative, I know what needs to be done. I'm idealistic enough to want to try new and different ideas, but realistic enough to know what doesn't," he said.

"I want to see that the S.A. follows the constitution that has been approved by the student body in the past," said Buce. "I want to see that we have an Executive Council that will do the most for the benefit of the students," he added.

Ken Stamatis

Buce has served on the elections reform committee and the academic affairs committee this year.

"I would like to see a very well balanced SA that meets the needs of the majority of the student body," said newly elected Vice President Osborn. He wants to see the role of the vice president expanded and he intends to be a "strength" to the new president.

Ten creative writing contest winners named by faculty

Winners of the annual creative writing contest, sponsored by the humanities departments, were announced at a banquet honoring them Tuesday night.

In the poetry division, winners were Mike Foster, first place; Randy Anthony, second place; and Bruce Cook and Leta Hall tied for third place. In essays, first place winner was Jeannie Ezell; Mark Albright, second place; and David Hanners, third place.

Eddie Willitt placed first in the fiction category; Sharon Goetting, second place; and Mike Roden, third place. In hymn lyrics, Cecil Price took both first and second place awards.

Dr. Gene Lyon, freelance writer from Little Rock, addressed those at the banquet and spoke on five young American contemporary writers who "characterize the different attitudes and the single-minded dedication of writing." Lyon, one of the few full-time freelancers today, writes for Texas Monthly, the New York Times, Book Review, Harper's, Arkansas magazines, and several academic weeklies.

Cash awards were given to the winners of the contest in which there were 149 entries. The writing was judged by a committee of faculty and non-faculty members.

Officers elected for '79-'80 SNEA

The Florence Cathcart chapter of the Student National Education Association, one of the largest chapters in the state of Arkansas, met in a monthly meeting on Thursday evening, March 29, 1979 at 6:30, with Cindy Madden presiding. The main business of the meeting was the election of new officers for the coming year 1979-80. Officers elected are as follows:

Pres. — Wendall Cave
Vice-Pres. — Ann Gregory
Sec. — Glenita Hale
Treas. — Sonia Hill

Only the spirit of Pentecost can hope to overcome our problems. A little handful of people at a time, who had the proper concept of God's will and God's ways were their only concern. When we lose respect for either his will or his way we are doomed. For a hundred years and more we have preached God's will and God's way. Those who were converted under that preaching became a distinct and peculiar people. To the extent that we lose sight of their conviction and their commitment we become like the nations around us and we have all the problems they have.

In the amazingly short period of five years, Spring Sing has become a well-grounded tradition at Harding College. It has evolved over the years to the major entertainment event of the year, attracting hoards for the annual Youth Forum.

This year's edition, Spring Sing '79, was the best ever, employing twenty-one of the campus' social clubs in twelve productions, each one unique and meritorious. Perhaps one negative result of the escalating excellence of the show is that some of the smaller clubs can't keep up. Twenty-four productions were originally slated, but half dropped out.

"Ham It Up!" presented by Galaxy and Ju Go Ju, swept all the major awards, placing first in theme, music, costume, choreography (a real coup, considering their costumes), and the overall sweepstakes categories, and deservedly so. They won over more than one heart with their adorable pig suits, but what really made them memorable was their selection of songs. By taking a handful of unrelated pop songs and tinkering with the words a bit, they came up with an irresistible medley — "Porker Girl" (inspired from "Surfer Girl"), "Fat's the Way I Like It," "Born to Ham Jive," and my favorite, "At the Slop." Pure genius.

First runner-up in the music, choreography, and sweepstakes categories was "New York, New York," presented by Regina and Chi Sigma Alpha. I especially enjoyed their flashy and frantic salute to the Big apple, however, their costumes were perhaps a bit too drab and there was too much glitter. Their enthusiasm and the fine blending of their voices outweighed their flaws.

"Love the One You're With" by Zeta Rho and TNT was another one in the cute category with its "princess and frog" theme, but despite a few technical flaws, it rose above itself and was very entertaining. "Celebrate" by Chi Lambda Chi and Alpha Gamma Omega was a sharp production and featured great singing and songs, but I had trouble with their theme. Why a "salute to Spring Sing" in Spring Sing?

Knights and Phi Delta presented "Rollin' on the River," which took us on a cruise on a Mississippi riverboat. Their costumes were colorful and they really seemed to be putting their all into it.

I thought Theta Psi had a neat little production in "Fountain Fantasy," a tongue-in-cheek salute to the all-powerful ice cream sundae. The appearance of a banana which shall remain nameless (Hi, Karen) was a highlight of the show.

A real disappointment was King's Men and Oege's "Luck Be a Lady." The songs were fine, the singing excellent, but the whole thing lacked punch. They were too immobile on stage.

I almost headed for the door in a panic at the beginning of Kappa Phi and Tri Sigma Delta's "A Star is Born." The costumes and flickering lights gave the illusion of a nightriding band of Klansmen. I know it wasn't intentional, but it was still unfortunate.

Baldwin selected for nationals; works toward an Olympic future

by Linda Hilbun

Bruce Baldwin is probably the most talented athlete on the Harding campus.

A sophomore from Jacksonville, Ill., Baldwin plays guard during basketball season and is Coach Ted Lloyd's primary point gainer in track. In his first semester at Harding, Baldwin broke the school record, as well as the AIC record, with a leap of 48'6" in the triple jump. He topped that mark with a 49'8" showing last weekend at the Memphis State Relays.

Baldwin is the only Bison who has qualified for the NAIA

Nationals to be held in Abilene, Tex. May 17-19. He is in Lawrence, Kan. today participating in the Kansas Relays and will be jumping at Drake University next weekend.

But the outspoken athlete did not begin triple jumping until three years ago when he broke his high school record with a 47'6" jump. He was recruited for football and baseball scholarships. A small junior college in Arizona caught his attention and he made plans to play baseball and football there. The plans fell through, so Baldwin stayed home his first semester.

"Things didn't work out with Arizona, so I just wanted to wait awhile and see what would happen. Then Coach Bucy called and offered me a basketball scholarship. I took it," he stated.

Baldwin is buying time at Harding for college is just a means to an end for him. His goals reach far beyond winning nationals. He is looking at the Olympics.

"I'd like to go in 1980, but I don't think I'm in good enough condition for it yet. If I keep improving, I'd like to be there in 1984, if not next year. I think it will take a lot more work and determination. I need to gain a foot on each step, eat a better diet, and work about 50 percent harder, but if I can do all of that, I think I can make it," Baldwin concluded.

Reviews . . .

I have two main gripes with Spring Sing. One is that when women's clubs are participating without a brother club, why do they have to have a beau (or beaux) walk out and do something dumb? It's distracting and not necessary at all.

Secondly, each club participating in Spring Sing should circulate a list of each song they are using in their production so that no song would be included in more than one presentation. This happened several times this year, and one song was used both by a club and the host and hostesses.

Spring Sing is a lot of fun, both to view and to be in. This year's may be history, but you can bet right now some club is working up its theme for next year. How about a salute to nuclear power ("You Light Up My Life," "Melt Down tonight") or a tribute to President Carter's economic policy ("Tragedy," "Walking Back to Georgia")? Oh well, in any event.

Jump high!

Bruce Baldwin practices for his performance in the NAIA national meet to be held in Abilene May 17-19. Baldwin is the only Bison who has qualified to attend. He is participating in the Kansas Relays in Lawrence today and will jump at Drake University next weekend. Baldwin leaped 46-6 in the triple jump for first place in Monday's quadrangular meet. Baldwin is also a member of the Bison basketball team. He has hopes of one day participating in the Olympics.

Harding to host Mexicans, AIC schools in track meet

An all-star track and field contingent from the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference will meet the Mexican National Team in international competition April 24 at Harding College's Alumni Field.

"The AIC will have four representatives in each event," Harding coach Ted Lloyd, who is the coordinator of the meet, said. "They (the Mexican Team) will bring a total of 25 competitors."

Entrants from the AIC are being selected on the basis of their best performances this season. The AIC coaches will select the top five in each event with the fifth man serving as an alternate.

The meet will be staged under Olympic rules. All distances will be metric and no team totals will be kept.
